

Edward Andrew Hepburn, B.C.E., A.M.I.C.E., former Chief Engineer to the Department of Health

1890 - 1951

1919; First appointment to the Public Health Department as Assistant Inspector and Engineer.

1932; Promoted to Sanitary Engineer, a position which was later classified as Chief Engineer.

1938; Convener and delivered the first paper at the First Annual Conference Sewerage Engineers and Operators ~ Titled 'Standards of Design for Reticulation Sewers'

A prolific writer, a profound thinker, and a tireless reader, Mr. Hepburn was never too busy to listen to others' problems and his advice and sound judgement were as freely given to people outside the Public Service as to those in it.

No journey was too long or too arduous in investigating a problem and his calmness, perseverance and fortitude, his shrewd observations, and his assiduous labours commanded the respect and admiration of those who worked with him.